

Bituminous Operators Make Ready to Reopen Many Mines Wednesday

This Action Said to Have Been Planned at Conference This Morning.

CONFEREES DEADLOCKED

With Lines More Tightly Drawn Between Mine and Union Representatives Government Still Hopes to Bring About Amicable Agreement.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The bituminous coal operators and union representatives met today in a conference in the White House, but the lines were more tightly drawn than ever before, and no agreement was reached. The conference was held in the morning, and the operators and union representatives were in a deadlock. The operators were demanding a 10 percent increase in wages, while the union was demanding a 15 percent increase. The government is hoping to bring about an amicable agreement, but the operators and union representatives are not willing to budge.

At a lengthy meeting held this morning, the operators and union representatives discussed the various issues at stake. The operators were demanding a 10 percent increase in wages, while the union was demanding a 15 percent increase. The government is hoping to bring about an amicable agreement, but the operators and union representatives are not willing to budge. The conference was held in the morning, and the operators and union representatives were in a deadlock.

The old wage scale calls for a base wage of $7.50 a day under ground, while the mines that will open are expected to offer to miners the 1917 wage scale which has a base of about 50 percent. Both the union officials and operators appeared to be fully informed of each other's determination and it is only a matter of time before the government proposal is accepted.

Secretary of Labor Davis appeared hopeful before the meeting, but he again stressed the government's impression that the Administration would intervene further before letting the matter settle. He said that the government was not going to force the operators and union representatives to reach an agreement.

After the presentation of the operators' resolution to the joint meeting, there was another discussion of the various issues at stake. The operators were demanding a 10 percent increase in wages, while the union was demanding a 15 percent increase. The government is hoping to bring about an amicable agreement, but the operators and union representatives are not willing to budge.

West Virginia Coal Loadings Set New Record

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. July 3.—Coal production in the Northern West Virginia field last week was the largest since the miners' strike began in April, according to figures issued here today by the railroad. The loadings on seven different lines were compared with 128,850 tons the previous week.

Accident Prevention For the Radio Amateur

Serious accidents have occurred due to the fouling of radio antennae with energized power lines. The hazard from this source is serious unless the antenna is so installed as to make accidental contact between it and the power wires impossible. Keep in mind that it is not only dangerous to erect the antenna close to an energized power line but such location brings about serious interference with the operation of the equipment.

To this end, that the radio amateur may be protected and that the development of radio may be stabilized and safeguarded, the West Penn Power Company requests all persons interested in radio to be warned against:

Attaching Aerials to any pole or tower carrying wires.
Stringing radio antennae over or under other wires.

Attaching antennae to any but substantial supports.
Climbing poles upon which wires are supported.

The cooperation of the public and authorities and especially the parents of young radio enthusiasts in this matter purely in the interest of public safety is requested.

For the interests of all concerned, individuals desiring to use radio transmitters should consult with the power company regarding the proper connection to the power lines. Interference preventers must be installed, or there will result considerable inconvenience to the company and to its customers in the immediate locality of the radio transmitter.

Persons erecting radio antennae, especially young persons, are especially cautioned to use great care in climbing about on roofs, in trees or other elevated places. Wear rubbers or "snappers" to reduce the danger of slipping on roofs. Use only sound, substantial ladders. Don't try to use spurs as they are unsafe unless you are experienced in their use, and they are in the best condition. Remember that even the most experienced line-man is obliged to wear a heavy safety belt to work safely on poles. Above all the young amateur should be on the look-out for wires that may pass close to the roof and keep both his aerial and himself away from them.

In planning your set it is well to remember that an outdoor aerial is not absolutely necessary—that indoor antennae will operate well if proper instruments are provided. It is hoped that the use of the indoor type of antennae may be developed so that it will in time supplant the expensive and dangerous outdoor antenna.

The antenna should always be grounded when not in use. This may be accomplished by making a substantial connection of No. 4 B. & S. gauge copper wire to water pipes (not gas pipes or heating systems) to one or more pipes driven several feet into the ground or to a copper plate buried in charcoal or crushed coke in moist earth five or six feet deep. The effectiveness of a ground may be increased by placing a quantity of coarse salt around the pipes or under the plate. Connection to the antenna should be made through a double throw, single pole switch of 100 amperes capacity, the antenna being connected to the center of the instrument on one end and the ground to the other. In this way the instruments are cut when the antenna is grounded.

If in spite of all precautions an accident should occur, and the person working on or listening to the radio set should receive a shock rendering him unconscious, the first thing to do is to clear the victim from the conductors, then instantly attend to his breathing by the prone pressure method of resuscitation. Electric shock rarely kills outright, and if the victim can be kept breathing until he regains sufficient consciousness for the control of his vital functions, many otherwise fatal cases may be saved.

over seven per cent. At that time the country was entering a period of violent business readjustment and depression, and the increase in traffic between June and October was not normally large. This was the country apparently in a period of increasing business activity. This indicates that the increase in traffic, other than that between now and fall will be more than normal.

"The amount of coal produced and transported during the first half of 1932 was about 30,000,000 tons less than the average amount produced and transported in the first half of the last five years.

"One of the most ominous features of the situation is that up to the date of the latest available report the amount of coal which has been carried by the railways to the lake Erie ports and thence by water to the head of the lakes to supply the need of the north west was only about 3,000,000 tons. At this time last year the amount of coal that had been dumped at the head of the lakes exceeded 5,000,000 tons. If the northwest is to have sufficient fuel to carry it through the winter there must be dumped at the head of the lakes during the season of navigation from 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 tons of coal, and already the dumpings at the head of the lakes are 5,000,000 tons below normal.

"The situation developing demands speedy and concerted action. The production of coal must be increased. The shipment of it at other freight which can be accelerated must be accelerated. The railways must get ready as rapidly as practicable to deal with a record-breaking business. The shipping public must prepare to cooperate with the railroads by loading cars heavier and loading and unloading them as rapidly as practicable. The railways are in no way responsible for the coal strike or its probable disagreeable and costly aftermath and in this instance cooperation with them of all who can help solve the problem which will be presented and not be substituted for the usual outcry against them."

The opportunity is presented through Anthony Giacofci, chef of the New Willard Hotel, one of the big hostesses of the National Capital. Here is the recipe which Chef Giacofci says will make one dozen muffins:

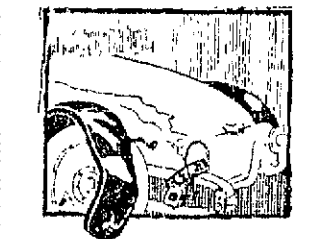

Four tablespoonfuls flour, four tablespoonfuls bran, one tablespoonful lard, one tablespoonful butter, one tablespoonful baking powder, one tablespoonful sugar, two eggs, one-fourth pint cold milk, a pinch of salt.

Mix the above thoroughly, flour with baking powder, add lard and butter, mix and add bran, eggs and milk, bake in hot oven twenty minutes.

WHEREIN THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS DISAPPOINTS.

The disappointment of the public with respect to President Harding's address at the opening of the conference of mine operators and representatives of the miners' organization on Saturday, will be due to lack of emphasis in dealing with what the public regards as the fundamentals upon which the contending parties should be required to come to agree before the details of a strike settlement are worked out.

With complete disregard of the President's refrain from giving expression to any individual sentiment he may have for either side to the controversy and very carefully measured his words with respect to the paramount rights of the public in the present emergency. But the impression has been created that, largely because of the care with which he sought to take absolutely neutral ground as between the two parties to the conference, he failed to speak as vigorously about certain aspects of the situation as his seriousness demands. Further, it is the view of many persons who have become apprehensive over the consequences that may ensue, that the President overlooked an opportunity to make an unequivocal demand that certain things be done, or conditions brought about, which he as chief executive of the government and the servant of the people has both the right and the duty to require.

In declaring that "Labor has the right, capital has the right, and above all else, the American public has the right to be freed from these recurring anxieties, no matter what the causes are," President Harding voiced the sentiment of the public which has come to look with increasing disfavor upon the all too ready and all too frequent resort to force as a means of settling industrial disputes.

But the President did not go far enough to embody in this statement a re-declaration of a basic principle with respect to the rights, prerogatives and privileges of American freemen—a principle that to which has been our wont to boast, as having been established by the founders of the nation and since held inviolate by those whose Americanism has not been tainted by any of the socialist or bolshevikisms imported from abroad. It is the principle recited with illuminating clearness in the Senate a few days ago when Senator Myers of Montana, in referring to the Florin mine massacre, declared that there can be "no free America so long as American citizens cannot exercise their constitutional right of working where, when, for whom and at whatever price they choose without seeking the consent of an irresponsible government, an organized minority." The occasion was opportune for the President to reaffirm this truth for the benefit of both the employers and employees whose acts and settlements belie the claim that they are loyal Americans.

President Harding sounded the timely warning that this is no time for the military mode of the radicals who would prefer to destroy our social system, no time for the extremist who thinks the period opportune to break down organized labor," but he was all too guarded in his caution as to what would be the consequences of a repetition of revolutionary outbreaks, while he refrained completely from giving notice that to ease the state of Illinois does not or cannot shut down the perpetrators of the recent outrage and those responsible for its inception, and so to the limit of its powers to prevent a recurrence, the federal government will act with firmness and decision and utilize all its resources to protect the humblest citizen in his constitutional rights.

Pinchot Already On the Job

Philadelphia Inquirer.

From Harrisburg the nominees on the Democratic State ticket send forth a platform promising an investigation into the tangled finances of the Commonwealth and securing the waste and extravagance of the present administration. "Elect McSparran," it says in effect, "so that corruption may be unmasked and punished."

This is very interesting, but the Democratic nominee for governor and his associates are too late. Gifford Pinchot is already on the job, and he is going about it in such a thorough and earnest manner that there will really be nothing left for the Democratic upstarts to perform. The trouble with them is that they have not kept up with the political procession. They may mean well, but they have been asleep at the switch.

Gifford Pinchot made his campaign for the Republican nomination for governor on the ground that it was time to "clean up the mess at Harrisburg." He denounced the wanton waste of the public funds and declared in favor of a budget system. He declared for economy and efficiency, and in words so plain that all might understand he insisted upon the strict observance of the law regarding the deposits of state funds.

The Democratic state platform, which is now revealed with an attempted blare of trumpets, reads as though it were taken from the speeches of Gifford Pinchot. He put himself upon record on all of these matters many weeks ago. But he has done more than promise. He is actually performing. He has selected a commission composed of experts and men in whom the public may have complete confidence, and has asked them to untangle the twisted skeins of state finances. Also he has asked these men to give him the data upon which he can base a budget system. He will not wait for a possible Constitution convention in the dim and distant future. He may not even require legislation, but at all events, he will be ready for action the moment he takes his seat as governor of Pennsylvania.

It was his courageous primary campaign that revealed the ferocity of the state treasury, and even while the Democratic candidates are sending out their platform promises, the auditor general is conducting an investigation into these charges.

Performance beats promise, and Mr. Pinchot is keeping many leagues ahead of Mr. McSparran. It was a cruel thing for him to do, but he has taken the wind out of the Democratic campaign. Citizens of all parties are equal taxpayers, and Democrats who want to "clean up the mess at Harrisburg" can do no better than to vote for Pinchot at the forthcoming election.

The Republican candidate is already on the job and we may be sure that he will stay on it until it has been finished.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS OF THE DAY.

Many happy returns of the day, Uncle Sam. Many happy returns of the day, though one of your humblest of nephews I am.

Two dropped in this morning to say many happy returns of the day, and to pray.

That you will be here when the world has grown gray.

"This is your birthday, the gift-giving time."

When friendship and love have full sway.

And so I am wishing for you in this rhyme.

Many happy returns of the day, God bless you and keep you, old country of mine.

God bless the blue field where your stars brightly shine.

I would I might bring you rich treasures of gold.

As my pledge of devotion to you, but I bring you the wish you shall have grown old.

God grant that all your wish may come true.

And I greet you once more in the old-fashioned way.

Uncle Sam, many happy returns of the day.

ASK YOUR MOTHER.

Oh, may I go to the show tonight?

Ask your mother.

If I spend a dime will it be all right?

Ask your mother.

May we go to the woods on Saturday?

Ask your mother.

And take our luncheon? And all I say is the phrase of most fathers on earth—today.

Ask your mother.

Pa, may I go to the candy store?

Ask your mother.

That's all, Pa. May I have some more?

Cokers Play Washington Field Club, All-Italian Team, Two Games Tomorrow

First Will Be at 10:30 O'clock, Second in Afternoon.

The Connelville Independents, who have been winning consistently this season, having lost but twice since the team took the field, will meet one of the best teams on its schedule in two games tomorrow, morning and afternoon. The Washington Field Club, an outfit composed entirely of Italians, and every one a fine athlete, will be here.

The team has played before in Connelville and is known throughout the tri-state district. The Independents will have the regular lineup out for both games. The pitchers will be Andy Kozar and Carr, the latter from Ambridge. Shomo, field manager, says he is the best pitcher in that place. Just which game Kozar will work and which one Carr will pitch have not been decided. The Independents are in their prime for the clash and all that is needed to make the day a success is two large crowds. The morning game will be at 10:30 o'clock and the second at 3:30 o'clock.

KOZAR HOLDS M'ARDLE TEAM TO THREE HITS

With Kozar in superb form, the Connelville Independents had little trouble winning Saturday over the McArdules, a Pittsburgh team, at Fayette Field. Andy was touched for just three safe swats in the nine innings. In that time the locals collected seven. The score was 7-1.

The only drawback to an otherwise perfect baseball day was the attendance. It was not large enough to pay the expenses of the club—not by many a dollar.

One of the hits off Kozar was a home-run clout by Hagler, which coincided with the fence. Another was a double by Pitcher Rosenberg. The other, the first one chalked up, should not have been a hit. It dropped between the pitcher's box and first base, with Shomo shortstop, in pursuit, and carried out of his reach by a strong wind. Either the first or second baseman could easily have fielded it.

Connellville scored first, in the second round. The McArdules tied it up in the third. The Cokers scored again in the fifth and retained the lead. The score:

SUMMARY.

Stolen base—Frazier.
Sacrifice hits—Mullen, Corbett.
Sacrifice fly—Fisher.
Two-base hits—Rosenberger and Shomo.

Three base hit—Corbett.
Home Run—Hagler.
Double play—Rosenberger to Striley to Boelstoring; Hagler to Boelstoring.

Umpire—Wall.

"Hohe" Fisher's bat was again in evidence Saturday. He won the two previous contests, and then again put the Cokers in the lead Saturday by a long sacrifice fly to middle field in the fifth inning. Kozar had received a walk and went to third on Shomo's hit. Fisher's sacrifice brought him in.

Corbett, who has been hitting with regularity, drove through middle in the second for a triple. He scored when Frazier knocked a boundary over the pitcher's head.

The McArdules won a local championship for independent baseball in Pittsburgh Friday evening. The Independents' victory merely adds to local prestige. Yet fans can't seem to realize that they have a real ball club here.

Women are still noted for their absence. Yet female nature brightened a number of spots.

The game was delayed for almost 15 minutes when a late train held up the arrival of the McArdules. The local management was not at fault, having the Independents on the field at 3 o'clock.

The home Juniors defeated the West Side Midgets, 21-22, in a game.

Letter Confirms Coming of Sox for Game on July 24th

Word confirming the acceptance of the contract for a game here between the Boston Red Sox and the Connelville Independents was received Saturday by Manager Joseph J. Thompson. The game will be on July 21.

The Red Sox were to have played in Connelville on Monday, sandwiching the contest in between games at Washington and July 2 and 4. Later this proved unsatisfactory in the Boston management and the contest was postponed.

The team will leave New York on the evening of July 23, the letter states, and arrived here the following morning. It will spend the entire day in the city. It is guaranteed that Jack Quinn, native of Dunbar, and well known to many people through having pitched in the contest. The entire team will make the journey, the letter further states, and leaves that evening for Chicago.

LET'S MAKE IT A FIRELESS 'FOURTH'

The safest way to celebrate the Fourth of July is to make it a fireless Fourth. The property destruction due to fires from fireworks and firework is not heavy, as compared with that from other hazards, loss of life and injury are usually outstanding features of the Independence Day observance.

The so-called "burning apparatus" is being particularly condemned because the incandescent core that remains after the surface material has been burned off, makes it a highly dangerous toy. Last Fourth of July, for example, six Chicago children received fatal burns from these "playthings," according to the records of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

There is no desire to remove all joy from the occasion, but it is held that instead of promiscuous noise and illumination, with attendant casualties, the occasion should be made a patriotic, community affair, with appropriate exercises.

"Shimmy" Machine on Ships.

Contrasted with "starving Europe," millions of Americans are struggling with too much fat. Glenn M. Parley writes in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. The shipping board was forced to put in "shimmy" machines on its transatlantic liners for the accommodation of the over-fat patron. A substantial belt connected with a vibrator gives the patient all the effect of a violent "shimmy." The belt shakes its victim like a plate of jelly, and bay windows disappear like magic. One man lost 68 pounds on the round trip from New York to Bremen.

Americans kick about the high cost of living, and yet buy and consume more food than they require, to the extent that machines must be invented to work off the surplus fat. It may occur to some of them yet that the most economical and efficient way would be to lay and consume less food and dispose with the shimmy machine.

Rate Eat Up Evidence.

An official investigation has been appointed for the Miami oil courtship. Official steamshipers and their agents eaten by rats during the night. A judge lost his gown and silk hat from the closet in his chamber. Civil suits involving valuable property were delayed through the disappearance of records. Finally, when "Exhibit A" in a murder trial was eaten, and the prisoner had to be liberated from lack of evidence, the authorities decided it was time to take action.

Willing to Risk It.

"If you eat another piece of cake, 'You'll surely burst,' said mother. 'Then pass the cake and clear the way,' responded little brother."

Speed when you want it Power when you need it

Only a properly balanced gasoline can meet both the requirements for Speed and the requirements for Power.

It is the finely determined combination of quick-acting volatility and power-producing stability that gives Atlantic its extraordinary range of efficiency and makes it the superior motor gasoline of the day.

A charge of Atlantic ignites and burns in an inconceivable fraction of a second. It functions perfectly in motors doing two to three thousand revolutions a minute (which in a four-cycle motor means 1000 to 1500 explosions per cylinder).

And power! Note, especially on hard pulls at slow speeds, the determined, measured punch behind a set of Atlantic-driven pistons. Due to Atlantic's high expansive force and the uniform "chain of boiling points" that makes combustion sure and complete.

When you buy Atlantic you get more than just "good" gasoline. You get RIGHT gasoline—fuel that is correct for present-day motors and efficient under every speed, load, temperature or other operating condition.

OUTRAGEOUS PRICES FOR CRACK PLAYERS

Ban Johnson Is Gloomy Over Outlook for Future.

President of American League Says Two Years of Unprecedented Prosperity Has Given Baseball Owners False Ideas.

Discretion is needed in baseball. President Ben Johnson of the American league says so. He declares the magnates in the majors and minors are not using it and as a consequence may have to suffer in the future. Unless they come out of their delirium and stop paying and demanding outrageous prices for players, they are likely to have a sad awakening as early as next season.

Prosperity in the last two years has carried them off their feet and they are forgetting what the word prudence means, writes Oscar Rebeck in the Chicago News. If they force any team not using it, according to Johnson who is not building over with optimism over the outlook. "We are and have been traveling along on a fictitious prosperity for the last two or three years," said President Johnson, "and the sooner we step down the better it will be for the game and everybody concerned. Next season may not be so good for the owners. They have had two wonderful years and have allowed that fact to affect their judgment. There is likely to be a sudden slump in baseball. Indications are that the industries will reopen full blast next year. If they do the men who attended the games this summer will be at work and will have no time for the game. If the club owners, managers and owners are wise they will prepare for conditions of that character."

Ben Johnson.

Major league club owners notoriously are doing baseball an almost irreparable injury by inflating the prices on players as they have this year. They are slowly working the minor organizations, the bodies from which their stars must come. They do not realize it now, but they will force players for whom exorbitant prices are paid out a threat of loss of their ability and depend upon them
